What About Choirs & Choruses

By Marvin Rickett

For generations the use of small musical groups within the congregation has been popular in the denominations. They have their choirs who sing to the rest of the audience. They have quartets to entertain the audience. Or they have someone sing a solo to “inspire” the worshipers. A whole culture has arisen about this musical practice, with choir robes, minister of music, choir loft, concerts, etc.

Now comes along some churches of Christ who have taken up this practice of small musical groups within the congregation. We read in their bulletins about their forming a chorus to sing during worship, or having a quartet to perform during services or allowing a soloist to inspire the audience with a special rendition. And we read the preacher’s defense of such practice. We are shocked that such unscriptural practices should get into the churches of Christ!

Just a few years ago we all stood shoulder to shoulder opposing such innovations. We should realize that this practice slips in with other unscriptural practices that these brethren have been defending: mechanical instruments of music in church worship, Lord’s Supper on other days of the week, women leadership, unity in diversity, the new hermeneutic, fellowship activities with the Denominations, etc. They all stand or fall on the same principles. Worship is not entertainment. It is not “a big party,” as one of these preachers put it.

If the truth be admitted, the musical presentations given by choruses, quartets and solos are for the entertainment of the passive hearers. It sounds good, it makes them feel good. However, worship is a service given to God. God is the recipient, the audience is not. God is the actual auditor, the people in the pews are the “actors.” (I use actors advisedly, because our worship must never be pretense.) The people in the pews are the servers.

Every Christian is equally obligated to worship God. No one can do it for you. Each person is obligated to sing. Can someone else give for you? Can someone else take the Lord’s Supper for you? Yet, the chorus is singing for you! Even in our prayers, the one who is audibly praying isn’t praying for you. He is leading you in your prayer. When the congregation is singing, you cannot sit silent and be worshiping God satisfactorily. Someone objects: “But I am singing by thinking the words in my mind.” That is not the definition of singing. Singing involves words plus vocal sounds.

The Bible teaches that every Christian is a priest (1 Peter 2:5,9; Revelation 1:6). A priest’s job is to offer sacrifices to God. Every Christian offers the sacrifice of his heart and voice when he sings. No one is authorized to do it for him.

Congregational singing is all that the Scriptures authorize for music in the worship of the church. In 1 Corinthians 14:15 the setting is the assembly of the whole congregation. Paul says “I will sing with the spirit, and I will sing with the understanding also.” In Ephesians 5:19, Paul writes to the whole congregation: “Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord.” Every individual in the assembly is speaking to every other individual, and together they are singing to the Lord.

In Colossians 3:16 Paul writes a similar directive to the assembled church at Colossae: “Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord.” These passages give no authority for anything less than the whole assembly singing together.

However, the defenders of choruses and solos think they find scriptural justification for their practice in 1 Corinthians 14:26 -- "How is it then, brethren? When ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation."

They argue that the one who had a special psalm was allowed to sing it solo before the audience. Is this the case?

1. In the first place, it was during the time of miracles and there were practices then that did not continue in the church. No one today receives a direct revelation from God in the form of a psalm, or any other way. We have the completed, written Word.
2. The passage never says the psalm was sung! Psalms were not always set to music. A psalm was basically a poem that revealed a truth about God and spiritual things.
3. It could very well have been that the passage is speaking of the inspired man who received a psalm from God and in turn taught it to the audience line by line so that the whole audience rendered the psalm.

They appeal next to James 1:13 -- "Is any merry? Let him sing psalms." "Now surely," they argue, "This is authority for singing a solo in church." But James is not speaking of church worship. He is talking about an individual who expresses his feelings of joy in personal devotion

There is no authority for injecting choruses, choirs, quartets, solos and other small singing groups into the worship of the church. The practice is contrary to the very nature of worshipping God in spirit and in truth. Let us be content in doing things just as the Lord authorized them
